Kurt Wehmann has over 23 years of experience in the field of architecture, with a focus on performing arts projects. His interest in design lies primarily in expressing and celebrating the act of living life and the idiosyncratic rituals that constitute the human experience.

Kurt's theatre consulting career was ignited by his interest in acting while an architecture student in Boston. Upon graduation, he moved to NYC to work at the theatre consultancy Sachs Morgan Studio where, from 2001 to 2009, he specialized in space planning, seating layouts, sightline analysis, interior design, code issues, and accessibility solutions. He went on to work as an architect with Holzman Moss Bottino Architecture for six years, focusing on the design and construction of unique performing arts facilities around the country. Eventually, he began to wonder what life was like outside of the Big Apple. In 2016, he took a two-year "sabbatical" in North Carolina at which time he joined TCC. He has since relocated to Hudson, New York.
